The SpeechComm Method

Our client companies share our belief that investing in effective employee communications training and development is essential for maximizing productivity while presenting their brand in the best possible light. The key to driving that result is ensuring clear and positive communication throughout all touch points, internally and externally.

ABOUT THE SPEECHCOMM METHOD

"The SpeechComm courses are well designed and expertly delivered. Everyone who attended could immediately take elements of the training and incorporate them into communication with their customers and prospects. The training provides practical real world guidance and suggestions on the presentation format and content."

Presentation Skills

Many of us are able to speak in front of a group, but how many of us can actually influence or motivate a group or an individual to act? This course is designed to help participants compete successfully in a world where presenting yourself and your message effectively is a must! more
Customer Service Excellence

The Customer Service Excellence training modules focus on the identification, understanding, and use of the three primary listening styles and on the communications skills needed to minimize barriers, misunderstandings and defensiveness. more

Emotional Intelligence: The Key to Interpersonal Communication

Emotional Intelligence is defined as a set of competencies that demonstrate the ability one possesses to recognize his or her behaviors, moods and impulses. It also includes the ability to most effectively manage these behaviors, moods and impulses in any given situation. more
